TARIFF CAUSE OF THE SOCIAL UNREST IN THIS COUNTRY

Morrison I. Swift in People's Forum Points Out the Fallacy of Protective Tariff.

Owing to a special evening service at the Universalist church the People's Forum was held at four o'clock Sunday afternoon and there was a good audience, which all closely followed the speaker, Mr. Morrison I. Swift of Boston, who delivered a very interesting and forcible address. The fundamental fallacy is that of "The Fallacy of the Protective Tariff."

The talk was followed by a discussion in which many took part, and it selected by intelligence, but are brought out some interesting points chosen by the manufacturer's ability to stimulate wants.

Consequently the country's work is excessive and misapplied (directed to wrong objects).

But, while ruled by the fallacy of creating an excessive quantity of the wrong things, we have not given thought to seeing that the people who need various products have them. The labor now applied would easily supply every one in the country with all needed comforts, but owing to bad distribution many are forced to go without even the bare necessities.

They have nothing to buy them with.

Superficially the reason seems to be that they cannot get work and so cannot earn money to buy what they need.

This leads to the cry of the protectionist that we must make more work for the laboring man and that protection does it, which is one of the protectionists' main arguments.

In other words, although much more than enough labor is expended to supply all the people with everything they need, we are told that we must find a way to make more work if we do not want many things.

The things to be produced are not numerous products—the fallacy of

"The Fallacy of the Protective Tariff."

MANY ARMY POSTS WILL PROBABLY BE ABOLISHED

ARMY MAY BE CONCENTRATED IN EIGHT POSTS, SAVING $500,000

Washington Jan. 28.—Acting upon about eight great strategical points in the United States instead of scattered in forty nine posts as now.

Two or three of these groups would be on a line between the St. Lawrence and Atlanta, covering the Atlantic seaboard; two or three groups would be on the line between Puget Sound and Los Angeles, covering the Pacific seaboard; at least two groups between the Great Lakes and the Rio Grande, serving as first reserves for either seaboard and for the development of the National Guard and volunteer forces to be organized in the interior.

The posts condemned include Fort Apache, Ariz.; Fort Jay, New York; Madison barracks, New York; Fort Niagara, New York; Fort Ontario, New York, and Fort Wayne, Michigan. Of Fort Apache it is said that a possibility of Indian trouble near this post still exists, and that Fort Jay is retained as headquarters of the eastern division as the site of the eastern military prison.

There is another formidable list of posts from which for practically similar reasons the garrisons will ultimately be withdrawn to such concentration centres as congress may authorize. These posts include Fort Oglethorpe, Ga.; Fort McPherson, Atlanta, Ga.; Fort Sam Houston, Tex.; Fort Lawton, near Seattle, Wash.; and Vancouver barracks, Wash., near Portland, and the Presidios of San Francisco and Monterey, Cal., one of which may be included in the California strategic group.

Secretary Stimson's report is made in answer to a house resolution by Representative Bulkeley of Ohio.

The principal object of the military experts is to dispose of the present day small army with distinct reference to its mission in case of war. This first involves adequate forces for foreign service, and Jefferson barracks, Mississ.

garrisons which cannot be reinforced easily from the United States after the outbreak of hostilities. With the remainder, a mobile force is to be organized and distributed among four posts recommended for rotation.

Four posts recommended for rotation are: Fort Still, Okla.; Fort Bliss, Texas, and Huachuca, Arizona, and Fort Myer, Virginia.

ords also show that the number of keepers and surfmen who have died during said ten year period by reason of injury received or disease contracted in the line of duty in the service is eight-two, an average of about eight per annum. The records show that a great many of these men died from disease caused by cold and exposure while in the line of duty, while in other cases death was due to accident or drowning while on duty. Of the eighteen persons shown to have died in 1902, seven were drowning at one time by the capsizing of a boat while returning from wrecks.

NEW CASTLE NOTES

BREEZY JOTTINGS FROM THE ISLAND TOWN

The brocol temperature which has swooped down upon us for almost a month is reminiscent of what we have come to call an old fashioned winter. It is seasonable as the seasons used to be regarded. There seems to be no immediate indication of a break in the frigid conditions. Moderation of the extreme cold under which humanity has shivered and shrank during the past weeks will come as a blessed relief. Happy are those who have been able to withstand the fierce bluster without physical damage.

The continuous cold weather has made a great amount of ice. The Wentworth pond has been harvested and Mr. Luther Amazeen has cut a large supply from his pond which is said to be of excellent quality.

Mrs. Ada Prohaska has recovered from a heavy cold.

Rev. Lucius Thayer of Portsmouth held divine service at the Congregational church Sunday morning.

Mr. Conrad Push is confined to his home by illness.

Mrs. Mary Hazelnut is restricted to her home by illness.

Mrs. Nellie A. Card has returned from a brief visit with relatives in Newburyport.

Mrs. Lillian Yeaton of Rye is the guest of Mrs. Esther A. Poule and family.

Mrs. Angeline T. Randall is recovering from her recent illness.

Mrs. Dorothy Hayward is ill at her home with pneumonia.

Mrs. Myra Martin is able to be out after a three weeks' restriction to her home with the grip.

Mr. Orville Amazeen has recovered from an attack of tonsillitis.

Miss Nellie L. Winn, after a brief visit with relatives, has returned to her home in Portsmouth.

It may be set down with over-degree of certainty that the annual necrology party given in Pythian hall this evening by the Pythian Sisterhood will be a decided success.

CITY COMMITTEE MEET

The Democratic city committee held a largely attended meeting on Sunday to prepare for the nomination of delegates to be voted on at the constitutional convention.

NEW HAMPSHIRE SOCIETY BANQUET IN NEW YORK

The annual dinner of the New Hampshire Society of New York was held at Delmonico's on Friday evening, Jan. 26, and was well attended. First Vice President Philip Carpenter, presided. The speakers were Rosarians W. Pillsbury of Londonderry, Luther W. Little and Arthur L. Livermore who sang the praise of the old Granite State. The "glaces de fantaisie" were served in pretty boxes, blue sides, gilt edge, white silk top with seal of New Hampshire in blue. At each plate was a copy of Leavitt's Farmer's Almanac for 1912, which carried many of those present back to their boyhood days. The committee of arrangements consisted of L. N. Johnson, E. W. Emery, J. W. Doolittle, O. S. Marden, H. C. Quimby. Among the former residents of this city present were Moses Yeaton, E. W. Emery, W. Herman Sides, Alfred D. Emery, Joseph H. Emery.

ROCKINGHAM COUNTY

Interesting Items Gleaned from Near-by Places

At the regular meeting of the police commissioners Saturday afternoon two members of the board, William H. C. Follansby and Chester D. Hatch announced their resignations. These had previously been tendered the governor and council. Of the two members Mr. Follansby is the veteran having served for a period of twelve years, succeeding John E. Gardner. The time served by Mr. Hatch is about six years. The step is amicable on all sides and there is satisfaction with both members, yet the announcement came as a general surprise to the public. Mr. Follansby served on Governor Floyd's council and has held the office of Rockingham county treasurer besides being prominently identified otherwise with public life. Mr. Hatch is superintendant of the Exeter Manufacturing Company and came here from Pittsfield. Mr. Follansby stated that the reason for his resignation was a lack of time to attend to the duties owing to his other business, and that this was also the case of Mr. Hatch's resignation. The vacancies will be filled by appointment by Governor Bass. The only member of the board of commissioners at present is George W. Lane, who was appointed by Gov. Bass last March.

The annual Exeter-Andover debate will be held here this year and Exeter has the right to select the subject. Andover will choose the side which she wishes to defend. The subject must be chosen before Feb. 1.

Service was conducted yesterday at the Advent church by Rev. George Merrill of Sanford, Me. Rev. H. F. Quimby, pastor of the Methodist church, conducted the service at the West End hall this afternoon. Superintendent of Schools Lane of Hampton delivered a lecture last evening at the Hampton Congregational chapel on the subject "American Education and Its Present Tendencies."

Henry G. Wells of Haverhill, Mass., a member of the present Massachusetts legislature, and a practicing attorney in Haverhill, spent a part of the day Saturday searching titles at the county building.

The officers of Rylington Lodge, N. E. O. R., will be installed this evening, when the grand warden and grand secretary are expected to be present from Manchester, and also the grand president, Mrs. Emma Clark of Dover.

Prof. Oraven Laycock of Dartmouth addressed the students at Phillips' Exeter academy last evening. Prof. Laycock is a Dartmouth graduate with the class of 1886 and was admitted to the bar, but never practiced. He is professor of oratory on the Emerson foundation at Dartmouth.

NEWINGTON

The farmers have nearly all filled their ice houses with ice, which is this year exceptionally good as it is much thicker than that of last year.

The heavy colds and whooping cough which prevail throughout the town have made many of the school children victims of the disease so the attendance at school is small, especially in the primary department.

Mr. Justin Rand, on account of ill health, has been obliged to sell his milk route to Mr. Fred Winn.

Miss Edith Moody of Greenland has recently been the guest of her sister, Mrs. Charles Coleman.

Mrs. Amanda Pickering was a visitor in Exeter one day last week.

The many friends of Mrs. Louis deRochemont were pained to hear of her death, which occurred at her home on Thursday. The sympathy of the community is extended to the bereaved family. Mrs. deRochemont was a lady of fine traits of character, and leaves besides her family many friends to mourn her loss. The funeral services took place on Sunday afternoon at her late home and interment was in the family lot in Newington cemetery.

A measuring party was given at the town hall on Friday evening under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society. Cards were issued requesting each one to enclose two cents for every foot one measured in height, also an extra cent for each additional inch in the little bags which were attached to the back and hand to the doorkeeper as the entrance fee. A very pleasing program was rendered which consisted of music and readings. Dainty refreshments were served, after which games were enjoyed until a late hour. It is much to be regretted that sickness and the cold weather prevented a larger attendance.

BIGGEST AND BEST

The New York Sunday World has commissioned Mr. James Montgomery Flagg, the world famous pen and ink artist, to draw a full page of pictures each week entitled "The Adventures of Kitty Cobb" first picture next Sunday. In this series Mr. Flagg has made a great advance on anything he has hitherto produced. The pictures deal with the adventures of a young country girl who leaves her native village to seek her fortune in the big city. The full page drawings week by week follow her career from the day she leaves home.

The human element of Mr. Flagg's work is what has made him what he is today, America's most famous pen and ink artist. In next Sunday's World there will also be a full page of colors by Charles Dana Gibson, depicting Mr. Pickwick, the immortal character created by Charles Dickens drawn by Charles Dana Gibson. There will also be a new Sherlock Holmes detective story by Sir A. Conan Doyle, entitled, "The Disappearance of Lady Carfax." There will also be an 8 page Fashion Supplement showing the famous Pictorial Review styles for the spring of 1912. There will also be a 12 page Sunday Magazine and 4 page comic weekly in colors. There will also be a complete Joke Book—all new jokes and funny pictures, 16 pages, pasted and trimmed. Besides, there is the rest of the big newspaper parts of the Sunday World—America's Greatest Newspaper. If you want a copy you had better speak to a newsdealer to day.

STRIKERS ARE NOT DYNAMITERS.

(From the Lawrence Telegram.) Captain Proctor of the state police says the strikers had nothing to do with the "planting" of that dynamite, the "discovery" of which did so much to alarm all Lawrence a week ago and to do irreparable damage to the name of Lawrence all over the country.

No one who watched the attitude of the strikers since that first day of window smashing believed the strikers or their sympathizers had anything to do with the "planting" of that dynamite. The strikers as a whole have borne themselves in a most creditable and law-abiding manner.

The leader of the strikers emphatically avers that not only are the strikers not responsible for the bringing of the explosive into the City of Lawrence, but that it was "planted" with malicious intent by a representative of a Boston newspaper, whose name he knows.

"Aren't the local and state police officers a bit slow in their work in running down that 'dynamite' planting story? They were creditably quick last Saturday when they went to the Syrian's house where a package of dynamite was found, to the Italian's house where another package of dynamite was found and then to the cemetery where after a second visit and being furnished with a diagram, they found a third lot of dynamite wrapped up in a paper that was not even damp so recently had it been placed in the snow."

We do not believe the rumors that any one with a pull is being shielded. But we do believe that the Ty Cobb says that the best throwing catchers of which he has knowledge are Steve O'Neill of the Cleveland and Sweeney of New York. Ty has to admit it because they caught him trying to steal second. O'Neill played formerly with Worcester.

Roger Bresnahan says that the Cubs will not finish in either first or second place in the National League this season unless they have a couple of good pitchers, and he thinks the Giants are in the same predicament. Roger picks Philadelphia to win the pennant.

Those Exeter athletes who see championships at the Olympic games in the distance are still willing to annex some nearer home and the B. A. A. games in February will find them well represented. The team will not have its usual number but is conceded to be stronger. Casey, who appears to be a find as a mile runner is a Fall River boy.

George Stallings, manager of the Buffalo club, is trying to get some of the Detroit casts off. He has his eye particularly on Lathers and Drake, but he is lucky if he gets either one, as President Naval wants to turn them over to the Providence Grays. An agreement was made before Navine took hold of the Detroit team that Stallings should have any of the excess baggage the club is not disposed to carry along.

WARD TWO REPUBLICAN CAUCUS

people to suffer and starve.

The eminently bad mal-adjustment behind this demand is the false system of distributing products.

When armies of toilers are already greatly overworking producing more than is needed, is it not absurd to defend protection, on the ground that it causes this excessive work?

That is one of the evils of protection; it forces us to work harder for what we have.

What we want is a system that will require the least possible work for the needed total of most indispensably chosen necessities...

The effect of making work by protection is that the wages buy less. The price of every protected article goes up. But do wages rise? For a long time under extravagant protection prices have been ascending but wages have hardly altered except where trade unions have forced. Protection has not advanced wages; if they have increased it has been due to the strike or the threatened strike. Even as the unions are able to do little more than hold real wages, that is the buying power of wages, stationary; for when nominal wages are raised by a strike the employers advance prices again as an offset.

The working men gain nothing from the tariff system, but lose.

It is the owner of the protected industries that gains. Protection enables him to raise the prices of his products, and the army of non-owning producers pay the bill.

This brings us to the root reason for protection and at the same time its root fallacy, which is that society is divided into two camps whose interests are implacably opposed—the great owning producers, now organized in Trusts, on one side, and on the other their servants the wage and salary people. The former are a small body, the latter an enormous body; protection enriches these few and fleeces the many.

Take a simple illustration to show this. Here are three farm colonies bordering on one another, each of which is composed of twenty-five men with their families, all the men having equal ownership in their colony and sharing its income equally. In each colony some things are produced more easily and cheaply than in the others. By free exchange they all get the advantage resulting from producing needed things with the least labor. If colony one should place a duty on the articles produced most cheaply by the others, the effect would be that all members of that colony would have to work harder to produce those articles for themselves. A tariff then would be merely a decree that each man should have to work harder for his living. This would be absurd, and the colony would not hear of a tariff.

But now suppose three of the twenty-five members should get possession of the means of production in colony one so that the other 22 would have to work for them. By putting a duty on the articles mentioned (those which the other colonies produced with less labor and cost), these three owners could keep them out, and produce them at home, and sell them to the 22 men who would do the work. The 22 would have to pay a higher price for these things than before, and would therefore have to work harder for the same quality of living, they would lose, but the three owners would put the profit in their pockets and get rich.

That is the way protection between nations works. The non-owners are fleeced for the benefit of the owners.

This antagonism between the great owners and the non-owners who do most of the work is the cause of all our worst social evils. The two classes must be merged into one. A partial remedy would be to abolish dividends—that is, not to allow dividends to be taken out of any industry but to require all income to go in equitable wages to the workers. Another method is the social ownership of all mills, etc., which would accomplish the same end.

The Lawrence strike betrays the folly of the dividend system. The theory of dividends is that it is the duty of the actual workers to earn a large sum of money for distribution to an outside army of people who do nothing in connection with the mills, or if they do anything are paid salaries for it. These persons are parasites on the mills. The Pacific Mills are a case in point. Their capital stock is $3,000,000. Their total returns to investors during the nine years preceding 1910 was 135 per cent, an average yearly return of 15.11 per cent. That is, in these nine years the mills paid for themselves, and a third more to the owners and the owners still have the mills. This feat was accomplished by the toil of the workers to a large extent, and the majority of them receive wretched pay.

These mills are handsomely protected by a tariff. The tariff makes the owners enormously rich while the workers can live but little better than animals. It has often been pointed out that even if protection might protect the American worker from the pauper labor of Europe there is no such protection when the pauper labor can flood in to take the place of American workers in the mills here. It is currently said in Lawrence that one of the mill managers placarded at least two countries of Europe with a picture of the Lawrence mills across the street from a bank, with a line of operatives walking from the mills to the bank carrying money in their hands to deposit. Now the workers in these mills are out on strike starving. Many of them have earned below $5 a week.

The best way to judge of the tariff is by its fruits, and these are its fruits.

The Social revolution which is now in progress will entirely do away with rent, interest and dividends, and this will clear the way for a world system of trade in which the entire world will be without a single tariff wall, as the United States are among themselves now.

It is argued that a tariff on things now manufactured in Europe would bring the work here and cause great mills to be built, for example like those in Lawrence. But what is the value of having these mills when the workers in them are virtual slaves? We should be better off without them. The few great owners whom they enrich are undemocratic and un-American.

MORSE MOVED TO HOTEL MAY RECOVER

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 28.—Charles W. Morse, whose prison sentence was recently commuted by President Taft, left the Army Hospital at Fort McPherson Saturday morning. He was brought to a local hotel here he will stay until he is able to be moved probably to some Florida resort.

Morse was accompanied by Mrs. Morse and his sister, Miss Jennie Morse. He was conveyed from the military reservation in an ambulance. His physicians thought the removal from the hospital, where he spent so long a time after his transfer from the Federal Penitentiary, would aid his improvement.

For the first time in more than two years Morse this morning escaped the eye of government officials. Most of that time he spent in the penitentiary. About two months ago he was taken to the Military Hospital. Since his freedom was given two weeks ago he has remained at the hospital, too ill to be moved, according to his doctors.

TOO BIG FOR TUNNELS

A gigantic electric generator of unusual capacity, built for the Ford Motor company's factory at Detroit, Mich., has proved too large to pass through the railroad tunnels between Ampere, N. J., and that city. The machine was built at the Crocker-Wheeler company's plant at Ampere, but it was found necessary to wind the armature at Detroit. For the last ten years it has been necessary for all large manufacturers of electrical machinery to keep diagrams of all the railroad tunnels in the United States so that the parts of the big generators would not be built too large for shipment.

This particular monster has a rating of 2500 kilowatts, or approximately 3300 electrical horse-power, at a voltage of 250. This means that it generates a current of 10,000 amperes, as the current is equal to the number of watts divided by the voltage. It is to be driven by a direct connected gas engine running at 85 revolutions a minute. Very few generators as large as this are built at the present time. Generators of equal capacity are sometimes used for street railway service, but their voltage is usually about 600 so that the current generated is only 4000 amperes.

It is expected that the improvements at Lynn which have been held up for some time will begin as soon as possible after action is taken by the Massachusetts.

Bernard N. Warren of Massachusetts, formerly a well known railway contractor, died in Philadelphia, Pa., January 21, at an advanced age. Mr. Warren was one of the principal figures in the construction of the five

CHILDREN'S SCALP TROUBLES

Children are subject to many kinds of scalp troubles, such as scales, sores, scabs, ringworm, etc. If neglected, they spread and develop into serious diseases. Scratching aggravates the trouble and increases the danger of infection by other children. Cadum, the new remedy, stops the itching at once and begins healing with the first application. Its prompt use in any scalp trouble will save much suffering and anxiety. Cadum is good for any sore or eruption on the face or body. Of all druggists, 10 &amp; 25c. per box.

A union meeting of all organizations of railroad trainmen is being planned to take place in Boston in a short time. At this meeting it is understood a lot of work will be put in the hands of the grievance committee for adjustment.

Rumor has it that the changing of some of the through freight from the Eastern route of the Portland division to the Western route via Dover in order that quicker time could be made at terminal points was not so successful and that these trains will again take their original run via Portsmouth.

The Providence and Fall River Street railway company was incorporated under the laws of Massachusetts in March, 1861. It operates a street railway line of 12 1/2 miles from Providence to Fall River and Warren. The Warren line was discontinued several months ago.

STOMACH DISTRESS AND DYSPEPSIA GO OBSEQUIES

Diapessin Makes Upset Stomachs Feel Fine in Five Minutes

As there is often some one in your family who suffers from an attack of indigestion or some form of Stomach Nervousness, why don't you keep some vials of Diapessin in the house handy?

The pallbearers were nephews, anything you can eat without the Rev. L. H. Thayer, the pastor of the Commissioner N. H. Beane, Louis slightest discomfort, and overcome sour, gassy Stomach in five minutes in the family cemetery on Lafayette road, under the direction of Undertaker O. H. Ham.

Tell your pharmacist to let you read the formula, plainly printed on these 50-cent cases of Papa's Diapessin, then you will really see why it makes Indigestion, Sour Stomach, de Rochemont.

The funeral of Mrs. Emily Augusta de Rochemont, Sour Stomach, de Rochemont was held at two Heartburn and other distress go in o'clock on Sunday afternoon from five minutes, and relieves at once her late home in Greenland and such misery as Belching of Gas, there was a large gathering of sour, undigested food, rowing friends and relatives. Rev. Mrs. Emily Augusta de Rochemont.

Some folks have tried so long to three selections. Interment was in find relief from Indigestion and the family lot in the Newington Cemetery in an out of order stomach cemetery and the pallbearers were Moseas, Brickett Pickering, Howard Knox, Dadus Frink and Benjamin Hoyl, Undertaker O. W. Ham was in charge.

This, no doubt, is a serious mistake. Your real trouble is, what you eat does not digest; instead, it ferments and sours, turns to acid, Gas and Stomach poison, which putrefies in the digestive tract and intestines, and besides, poison the breath with nauseous odors.

MONDAY, JANUARY 29, 1912,

If this weather continues, there will be no danger of an ice famine.

Whenever the word "subway" is mentioned in New York it suggests underground politics.

A submarine diver and assistant arrived here from Portland last week to work on the Goucher wreck.
Every man to his trade, but "Whew!
Who wants to dive into the Piscataqua at this particular time? Don't all speak at once!"

The women teachers of the Portsmouth schools will have to look well to their laurels during Leap Year, if they are to compete with the fair dispensers of knowledge in Dover. On Friday City Treasurer William Kirk
Chadwick was presented with a box of cigars and a match safe by the women teachers of the city on the banks of the Cocheco and he has the same proudly on exhibition in his office. As Kirk is a "confirmed old bachelor," there can be no doubt but there was method in that presentation and we would respectfully suggest that he enlist City Messenger Corson and Health Officer Reynolds as a body guard for the remainder of the year.

The fact that the United States is now preparing to yield second place among the navies of the world will be especially grievous news to the Navy League of the United States.
This organization has been working to arouse a national sentiment for a powerful navy. The league is headed by General Horace Porter of New York, J. Pierpont Morgan, Jr., is its treasurer. It has a list of honorary vice presidents which includes Lyman Abbott and Cardinal Gibbons. It is stated that the object of the league is to secure and spread before the citizens of the United States information as to the condition of the naval forces of the country and to awaken public interest and activity in all matters tending to aid, improve, and develop the efficiency of the navy.

Every growing ambitious town is composed of three elements. Those who work patriotically, vigorously and intelligently for its advancement those who are in a state of apathy or indifference, and those who take a curious delight in discouraging the efforts of others by ridicule, and by a persistent denial that any progress can or has been accomplished, and by boasts of every other town besides their own. The last class are called croakers, but they are really sometimes worse, for their opposition does not arise simply from despondency but from that inenviable spirit that will neither act itself nor suffer others to act.—Granite State News.

The same applies to cities as well as towns, and is a convincing reason why all our citizens should "Pull for Portsmouth."

BIRD' EYE VIEWS

It is not alone in the ability to get the dollar but the capacity to keep it at work that makes or mars a man's fortunes.

Fears are entertained that the collegiate mortar board may be accidentally knocked into a cocked hat.

Mr. Bryan is "so generous with friendly greetings that he may entertain some idea of shaking hands with himself after the Baltimore convention.

It looks as if the only chance some of those Manchus have to remain in public life will be to start a few Chinese magazines.

Gifford Pinchot is now as much interested in conserving La Follett's public usefulness as he has been in looking after the resources of Alaska.

What a comfort it would be to the rest of the country if the whole political campaign for 1912 could be fought out in Ohio.

It is fortunate that some of our financial princes are not as secretive with their gems of thought as others are with their art treasures.

Col. Roosevelt, not being an avowed candidate, is not compelled to intimate to any gentleman that his support may be desirable.

The law of compensation constantly asserts itself. When a freeze-up favors skating carnival, the oyster traffic gets tied up.

Mr. Fairbanks is not haunting any vice presidential boom in a way that might prevent him from looming up as a dark horse.

There isn't to be the inducement to get up at 3 o'clock in the morning this year that there was last. The comets are scarce.

When we get to using the government wireless to transmit our messages, will the old-fashioned love letter disappear altogether?

Bryan has run so many times for the presidency that a presidential campaign without his name on the banners will seem strange.

Every statesman should remember that all his constituents are liable at one time or another to take a trip to Washington and feel thereafter a personal pride in the city.

Baltimore has been called the Monumental city and may be called on to provide a few political tombstones next summer.

AMONG OUR EXCHANGES.

Steel Needs No Protection.
Practically at the same time, Commissioner of Corporations Smith has issued a report on the cost of producing iron and steel and the ways and means committee has made public a new steel bill. The steel measures makes reductions of duty ranging from 30 to 50 per cent and places a good many products on the free list.

Mr. Smith's report taken in conjunction with his former publication on the same subject shows that enormous profits have been earned in the steel industry during the last ten years.

It proves that the real costs in the business are very low because ore, coal and the like are sold by the steel companies to themselves at constantly rising market values, although they were cheaply acquired. Thus costs are inflated and profits are actually far greater even than they appear.

The question will be asked how far Mr. Smith's report bears out the provisions of the Underwood bill.
Probably no definite answer can be given to this inquiry.
The report contains only a relatively small amount of data concerning costs in foreign countries, so that it is hard to get a definite basis of comparison even for money expenses of production. Moreover, it covers only the basis of the industry which turn out heavy products of the furnace. What does not seem clear with respect to these basic elements of the business is that they need no protection, but may be treated entirely on a revenue basis, if that be desired. Mr.
Carnegie and many others have frequently testified to this effect.

Quite different case is presented with respect to the higher manufactures, such as cutlery, needles and allied products, whose duties have been very largely cut down in this bill.
As for the machines of various kinds like cash registers and sewing machines which are transferred to the free list, there has been no study of their costs. It is known that a very large export trade in them is carried on, and that the prices at which they are sold abroad are generally lower than those charged at home. This seems to make them a fair target for tariff reduction or even for the abolition of duties, yet the case is evidently not conclusive. Republicans will base their attack on the bill largely on the treatment that has been given to this class of items.
They may be able to make a more or less severe criticism upon the measure. As yet there has not been an opportunity for technical analysis, and encourage crime or that its retention their line of argument is still somewhat obscure.

The delays and protracted debates over the fate of Phelps may pressure still further progress toward the more rational handling of crime and criminals in Massachusetts. While the delays in Phelps' case were torturing them, nevertheless, impelled by humane and loft motives, and the discussion aroused should not end with the death of Phelps. The state should rather study this question of capital punishment seriously and thoroughly, looking for facts as its experience of the four states of the Union and the five nations of Europe which have already abolished the death penalty. If there is no evidence provided by such a study that the abolition of the death penalty tends to detain from murder, there would be

FIFTY YEARS AGO TODAY SELECT CULLINGS

Gleanings From Files of Portsmouth Chronicle

Tonight, this (Wednesday) evening, the lyceum begins. B. P. Shillaber, Esq., Mr. Shillaber in fact our old Portsmouth friend, Ben Shillaber, a prince of good fellows, opens the course, at the Temple. His theme is "Fun," of which he has made so much for us all; and he ought to know how to tell us what it is.

The bound files of the New Hampshire Gazette for the most of a century, have been sold to the Boston Athenaeum, a very proper place for their preservation. The Portsmouth Athenaeum have a similar series of files already.

The resolution which Mr. Hale introduced in the Senate on Monday, probably referred to the ship Virginia, and not to the Pennsylvania, as reported by telegraph. The latter was burned at Norfolk last April to prevent its falling into the hands of the rebels.

Hon. Joe Holt says the appointment is uncertain in consequence.

Taken all in all, the Underwood steel bill is fairly supported by government investigation as far as the latter have gone, and that it is probably the best bill that the Democratic ways and means committee has yet drafted. It retains the sectional concession to the South involved in placing "cotton ties" on the free list and making fencing wire free, even though these changes do not fit into the general scheme of the bill. Legitimate criticism will be visited upon such ex parte clauses.

But there is a good deal that is worthy of praise in the measure, and it is the more creditable to the chairman of the committee in that it hurt the industries of his own district. He has had the courage to do what William L. Wilson did eighteen years ago. Will it hurt his political career as disastrously as it did that of his predecessor?—Boston Herald.

AN OPEN QUESTION.

The law of Massachusetts which calls for the death of a murderer by electrocution has been upheld in the case of Silas N. Phelps after torturing delays, and since the popular cry for his blood was so strong that there was no hope of commutation to life imprisonment, it is well that the barrowing suspense is at an end. This very suspense, however cruel as it may have been, was occupied by a serious debate over the equity of the death penalty as well as over the merits of Phelps' claims to a commutation, and this fact tends to indicate that there is a growing sentiment in the state opposed to the death penalty upon principle.

There was a time when execution of a murderer was taken as a matter of course, but the more enlightened people are beginning to question the efficacy and the justice of such a penalty and when concerned doubt as to the fitness of any course of conduct begins to assail a people, they are very apt eventually to give the victim of that conduct the benefit of the doubt. By such a process of elimination the death penalty has been abolished as a punishment for all crimes but murder and treason in most countries. Massachusetts itself in its early days recorded 12 different sorts of offenses punishable by death for all crimes except murder here being coincident with the progress of the people, with improvements in the prison system brought about by changing point of view a changing habit of thought.

The delays and protracted debates over the fate of Phelps may pressure still further progress toward the more rational handling of crime and criminals in Massachusetts. While the delays in Phelps' case were torturing them, nevertheless, impelled by humane and loft motives, and the discussion aroused should not end with the death of Phelps. The state should rather study this question of capital punishment seriously and thoroughly, looking for facts as its experience of the four states of the Union and the five nations of Europe which have already abolished the death penalty. If there is no evidence provided by such a study that the abolition of the death penalty tends to

King Alfonso's Children.

Kellogg Durand, the author, after spending a morning recently with the children of King Alfonso of Spain and finding them bright, normal, healthy youngsters, was surprised to be engaged by people at his hotel in conversation like the following: "What a pity that the princes are not right in their faculties." "But they are perfectly right," I replied indignantly. "Those stories are pure nonsense."

"Oh, no, sir! You must be mistaken." "How can I be mistaken?" I answered. "I have just spent a morning with them, and I found them not only normal in every way, but particularly intelligent." "That cannot be," was the reply, "because it is said that they are defective." The writer grew indignant and broke off the controversy, but learned that after he left people had speculated on how much he had been paid by the king to say that the princes were all right.—Chicago News.

A German View of Us.

"The Americans in Berlin read with much interest the 'American Notes,' which a local paper is publishing," writes a New Yorker from that city. The observant note writer makes a great fuss about the 'practical handling of baggage' and gives a full description of the check system—convenience which we at home do not appreciate. Among the queer things under the head of 'Customs' he says: 'In New York you may wear your hat anywhere. No one thinks of removing it in a place of business, but we unite in an elevator if a woman happens to be a passenger. On the street when you meet a man whom you know you need not remove your hat in salutation. You say "Hello, Billy!" and he responds, "Hello, Fritz!" and both rush on, too busy to say more!'"—New York Tribune.

Reindeer Meat.

W. F. Lopp, in charge of the government's reindeer service in Alaska, thinks that in twenty-five years the American people will depend largely on reindeer for flesh diet. The first commercial shipment of the meat was recently received in Seattle. In taste reindeer is a cross between beef and mutton, but more palatable than either. Reindeer can be raised more cheaply than cattle, and Alaska has pasture for 10,000,000 of them.

1912 CADILLAC AUTOS

Are in Advance of Any Autos Built

No auto is up-to-date unless it has electric cranker and electric lights. The only practical self starter is by electricity. The CADILLAC is the only car using electricity for cranking. They have exclusive rights for 1912. You generate your own electricity when you run the car. It doesn't cost a cent for starting, lighting, or ignition.

It is more reliable than your city electric power plant. It is guaranteed to go everywhere and is backed by the local agent, also the CADILLAC MOTOR CAR CO. The CADILLAC Co. has been strong enough to be in good standing for 10 years, weather the panics and keep one of the biggest manufacturers of autos like the Buick from going to the wall.

Nearly 3500 1912 CADILLACs delivered by January 1st. Portsmouth has sold half its allotment. It is strictly high grade, first-class auto at a medium price and in a class of any car built.

It has 40 h.p., 116 in-wheel base, 36 in. wheels, averages 15 miles per gallon of gasoline, 800 miles to a gallon of oil, 4000 to 7000 on tires, has a better cooling system than any auto built. Fully equipped and delivered, $1050. Top, shield, electric cranker lights.

We invite comparison to defy competition.

If it is the best, it is a CADILLAC; if it is a CADILLAC, it is the best.

IN THE REALM OF FASHION

Pretty Sewing Apron.

This sewing apron is of dotted and barred swiss, made with three scalloped sections, separated by rows of

BARRED SWISS APRON.

Velvet insertion and finished with insertion and edging.

Deep pockets were formed by laying the side sections double for about two-thirds of their depth. The usual ribbon waistbands, ties, and bows finish off this dainty article.

Ostrich Feathers.

Two colors of ostrich in the one set are attractive. While in the center with brown or black or tinted ostrich looks well, especially in the muff, and white trimmings on colored sets are liked. Ostrich feathers are dyed in every modish shade—green, red, gray and the like.

The Valentine Party.

Many little ones look forward to Valentine's day for the pleasure of sending and receiving the prettily decorated cards, and others are eager for the 14th of February to come for the party they will have, to which they have invited their playmates and friends.

For such an affair the invitations should be written on heavy white paper.

At the top print with water colors a heart pierced with an arrow, or in the upper right hand corner a little hand holding a bow.

You can make your own valentines if you are the least bit handy with your pencil and crayons.

Before the middle of the last century everybody made his own. The kind you buy or, rather, much plainer ones, first appeared in a town in Massachusetts.

They were sheets of letter paper, with pictures pasted in one corner, the edges scalloped and verses neatly written in the center. This was the beginning of our great valentine trade.

FOR THE CHILDREN

A Boy Who Met Lincoln.

When Lincoln was in Springfield, Ill., he met a little boy, who was introduced to him and allowed to shake the great man's hand. Of course the boy boasted of this honor among his schoolmates, who wouldn't believe him, making his life miserable by their kindly speeches. Young America, however badly he felt, was not going to be put down by a little thing like that. No, indeed! He sat down and wrote a letter to Lincoln, telling him of his trouble. After awhile he received a letter, which is still preserved. It read:

Executive Mansion,
March 18, 1861.

Whom It May Concern:
I did see and talk with Master George Evans Potter last May at Springfield, Ill.
A. LINCOLN.

From that time young George instead of being laughed at, became the envy of the other boys. The part of the story that most interests us is that Lincoln in this anxious time, amid the thousand things demanding his attention, should have found time to heed the importunate request of a schoolboy. It shows us very plainly that Lincoln hated injustice, however humble the subject of it might be.

The Valentine Party.

Many little ones look forward to Valentine's day for the pleasure of sending and receiving the prettily decorated cards, and others are eager for the 14th of February to come for the party they will have, to which they have invited their playmates and friends.

For such an affair the invitations should be written on heavy white paper.

At the top print with water colors a heart pierced with an arrow, or in the upper right hand corner a little hand holding a bow.

One warm day they had been down to the lake boating, and now they had turned their faces homeward.

"If you find the path rough for fashionable heels or tear your gown with the brambles or scratch your face with the wild rosebushes, on your head I'll be the consequences," Paul Campbell was warning Miss Austin, who had capriciously chosen a path through the woods, while he had wisely indicated another.

"I don't care. It's too hot to breathe today, and I know this is the shorter way. I'll get us home more quickly than the other."

"Well, it must be single file," observed Campbell, with something like positive relief, remembering that the arrangement would do something to add to the difficulty of conversation.

"You'll have a good opportunity," threw back Miss Austin over her shoulder, "of determining whether my hair is all my own."

"It's glory," answered Campbell, quick always in saying the required thing, "must blind me to its defects, if there be any."

"So good of you to make the quittance," retorted Miss Austin.

Here and there the briar rose bloomed in all their exquisite pinkness.

Campbell absently broke off a spray.

Absently, too, he pulled the leaves from the stalk. Then he chanced to look upon the pink bud.

With a whimsical, half tender gesture he thrust it into his buttonhole.

Oh, he was a fool, beyond doubt, to fancy such a connection. But those unconscious little petals, showing their delicate veins as they tapered upward and infolding so much wild sweetness, reminded him of Miss June's name; while Jane was as flushed and jubilant as summer's first month.

Lincoln Kept His Word.

When Lincoln was quite a young man he was visiting New Orleans.

Walking through the street one day, he saw a colored woman up on a stand in the market place, being sold at auction.

Turning to his companion, he said with emphasis, "If I ever get a chance to strike this thing I'll hit it hard."

He kept his word, but it was "with malice toward none, with charity for all."

During the heat of the terrible civil war, not a word of bitterness came from his pen. His honest manliness, his humorous, good natured penetration, won to his side not only his countrymen, but the great majority of mankind.

The leading combinations are red with blue, green with blue, strawberry with navy, navy with cardinal, blue with black and heliotrope with light green.

Each of these combinations, according to the manner in which it is draped, matches and supplements the color of the rest of the toilet.

Another favorite effect in ribbons is ombre, which is again being shown and is reported to be in good demand. The introduction of stripes heightens the effect of the ordinary style.

The chevron effect forms a third variety in fancy ribbons, chiefly in wide widths nothing having been produced to take its place.

In connection with the combined use of various effects attention has been given to a design in which a six inch center is composed of plain flanne, set in light green and white, being finished off with a white cambric stripe on each side, inclosing a black satin stripe two-fifths of an inch wide. Two diagonal chevron stripes follow next, four-fifths of an inch wide, the result being an extensive variety of shading from reds to blues. The whole is finished off with a black satin stripe one and one-fifth inches wide. Thus a large variety of weaves, motifs and effects is obtained.

Evening Wraps.

Some lovely evening wraps are of chiffon velvet. The wide band of embroidery or heavy lace is now at the knee and not at the lower edge. A Paris model showed a hood of black tulles finished with a band of colored embroidery.

A Pretty Fabric.

A great beauty in the new material called velour de laine, a mixed suitting, almost like camel's hair. It is particularly effective in a white diagonal stripe, and there are variations in tan, light blue and gray.

JUST MISS JUNE

Her Romance and the Way It Developed.

By VIRGINIA LEILA WENTZ.

Summer after summer the same elderly quiet people had come to Mrs. Austin's pretty country boarding house and the same noisy, vehement children. Of course there had been some additions to the latter class, some defections from the former, but the character of the company had remained much the same. This year, however, came a new boarder of a distinctly different element. He was Paul Campbell, a playwright of some repute.

Being the only eligible man on the place, Miss Austin had managed to lay hold of Mr. Campbell as her especial property.

At first he did not mind.

Were not her eyes sufficiently blue? Was there not always about her the odor of violets and heliotrope?

But when he discovered that both mother and daughter were trying to work the matrimonial game upon him he balked.

One warm day they had been down to the lake boating, and now they had turned their faces homeward.

"If you find the path rough for fashionable heels or tear your gown with the brambles or scratch your face with the wild rosebushes, on your head I'll be the consequences," Paul Campbell was warning Miss Austin, who had capriciously chosen a path through the woods, while he had wisely indicated another.

"I don't care. It's too hot to breathe

today, and I know this is the shorter way. I'll get us home more quickly than the other."

"Well, it must be single file," observed Campbell, with something like positive relief, remembering that the arrangement would do something to add to the difficulty of conversation.

"You'll have a good opportunity," threw back Miss Austin over her shoulder, "of determining whether my hair is all my own."

"It's glory," answered Campbell, quick always in saying the required thing, "must blind me to its defects, if there be any."

"So good of you to make the quittance," retorted Miss Austin.

Here and there the briar rose bloomed in all their exquisite pinkness.

Campbell absently broke off a spray.

Absently, too, he pulled the leaves from the stalk. Then he chanced to look upon the pink bud.

With a whimsical, half tender gesture he thrust it into his buttonhole.

Oh, he was a fool, beyond doubt, to fancy such a connection. But those unconscious little petals, showing their delicate veins as they tapered upward and infolding so much wild sweetness, reminded him of Miss June's name; while Jane was as flushed and jubilant as summer's first month.

Distributing Valentines.

A pretty way to distribute valentines at a party is to suspend from the chandelier a Cupid's bow and arrow. Use these, for delivering the valentines. Stick the missive on the point of the arrow, which is buried toward the person to whom it is addressed.

Have all the valentines original and use them for pairing off your friends.

The more absurd the rhymes the better. Prose will answer, but be sure to omit anything in the least rude or liable to hurt any one's feelings. For Valentine was the saint of love, and his day should be devoted to messages and acts of affection.

Grandmother's Valentine.

He had to wear his clothes, of course, for fear of tickle cold.

But we made a pair of paper wings and gilded bow and arrow, too, our little ladle made.

As sweet a baby Cupid as ever was trayed.

Then mother rimmed a little verse and taught him to recite.

He said it over patiently until each word was right.

"My own dear grandmother, I'll be your faithful valentine

Through all the happy year to come if you will just be mine!"

When Cupid got to grandmother's house her table was all spread with muffins and with peach preserves and spicy gingerbread.

And while he stood and gazed and gazed at all the tempting things.

Dear grandmas cried, "Why, Cupid, love, I know you by your wings!"

"My own dear grandmother, I'll be—our little lad began.

And then he pouted out his lip, as dimpled Cupids can;

And looking up at grandmother as grieved as grieved could be,

He cried, "I isn't Cupid, and I want to stay to you!"

"See here, young lady," he was saying half seriously, half playfully, "if you continue to evade me as you've been doing for the past few days I'm going to pack up my truck and leave next week. What possible pleasure do you think I find in a lot of staid ladies who knit on the porches and children who squabble?"

"There's Jane," suggested the girl demurely, watching the flash of a bird through the rift in the foliage. "She likes to be with you, Mr. Campbell, I'm sure. And I'm sure—here the nearly teeth caught the scarlet underlip. "Jane's, neither a staid, knitting lady nor a squabbling child. And why should you miss me? I'm not beautiful like Jane. I'm just—"

"Just Miss June," finished Campbell simply. But there was a world of quiet pride in his voice.

Jane trembled beneath his words and knew not why she trembled. But there was sufficient dramatic force in her to go toward the making of a great actress. She spied a spray of scarlet columbine on a gray rock overhanging a dark pool. Unconsciously the contrast of colors struck her artistic eye, and she made use of it to hide her sudden emotion.

"Will you fetch me those columbines that wave from the rock and throw colored patches on the pool, Mr. Campbell?" said she quietly.

But when he had gone her hand went for support to the column of the beach, her bosom rose and fell and her wide eyes dilated, then half closed.

"Oh, dear God!" she prayed inwardly. "I've never had any one in my whole life really to love me. And he is so big and so knightly. Don't let me imagine a vain thing that would break my heart. Let me remember that I am plain—and that he is just kind."

"Here," cried Campbell cheerfully, coming back with a bunch of the columbine and handing it to her. "The scarlet just matches your lips, little maid." It was not alone her lips that were scarlet now; a flame spread hotly over her cheeks.

In a few moments she jumped up laughing, smoothing out her blue gingham frock. "If ever I come to regard myself as a bewitching fairy princess I'll hold you responsible, sir. But I must be going now. I'm still Cinderella," she added. "I promised mother to make the salad dressing for luncheon."

And so the fragrant summer month drifted irresponsibly on.

One warm evening when the air was filled with the gold of fireflies, a maze of spangles, now darkening now brightening, Mrs. Austin came out on her side porch, which, for a wonder, was vacant, and swung her portly weight none too gently into the hammock. The silver of the moon was beginning to tremble through the leaves of the trees and to show patches of the garden path that wound to ward the front gate.

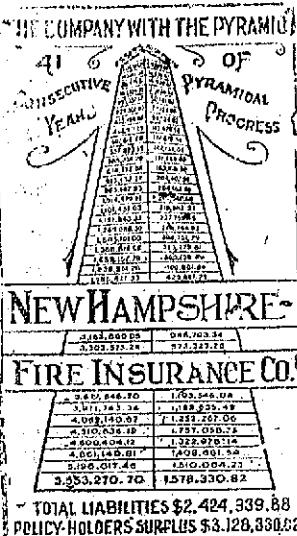

Those locusts sound awfully shrill," thought Mrs. Austin, trying ineffectually to put the hammock in motion. Then she lay there inert, yielding to the drowsiness of the air.

She must have dozed off a bit, for suddenly she started as is the way of one who tries to capture one's waking wits.

"And you know, dear, that I love you. I guess I've been loving you right from the first, but I didn't realize it till—"

Two figures had just passed the moonlit patch in the path and were emerging into the shadows that stretched toward the gate, so Mrs. Austin couldn't exactly see who they were, but she recognized Campbell's rich, deep voice.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP

The Follies.

"Ziegfeld Follies" which is playing its annual engagement at the Tremont Theatre, Boston, is everything that one could wish for in a first class theatre, and a whole lot more. It is indeed two shows in one, and an entertainment that exemplifies the genius of P. Ziegfeld, Jr., better than anything he has ever produced. He is in a class by himself and future "Follies" productions are imminent.

He probably spends more money on his entertainments than any other two producers placed together, but his reward is given by theatregoers of this country who flock to the "Follies" and know they are going to get more than their money's worth. It must be very gratifying to Mr. Ziegfeld to know he has the public's confidence, and he shows his appreciation by making this "Follies" bigger and better than ever.

CEMETERY LOTS

Cared For and Turfing Done.

With increased facilities the subscriber is again prepared to take charge of and keep in order such lots in any of the cemeteries of the city as may be entrusted to his care. He will also give careful attention to the tilling and grading of them, to the cleaning of monuments and head stones, and the removal of bodies. In addition to work at the cemetery he will do tilling and grading in the city on short notice.

Cemetery lots for sale; also Loam and Turf.

Orders left at his residence, corner of Richards Avenue and South street, or by mail with Oliver W. Hall, 64 Market street, will be given prompt attention.

GOOD FISHING AT THE BAY.

The small fishing at Great Bay has been especially good of late and there is a good number from this city fishing there daily. The bay is frozen over almost down to the Dover point bridge and the ice in places is almost three feet thick. The fish have been running exceptionally large and some big catches have been reported, although it is not uncommon for the fish to take one of their freaks of not biting, and although they can be seen in schools they will not take a hook.

MOTHER'S LESSON.

Little Martha Discharges Some of Her Responsibilities.

Martina heard some one speak of her mother's descenders to arithmetic which are perfectly visible to the naked eye—so she came and sat down beside her gravely and began:

"Mother, take four from fourteen and how much does that leave?"

"Ten," proclaimed the parent, thinking she was teaching the little one her lesson.

"Now, three from eight—that's rather hard, you know."

"Yes, it's frequently got on my nerves, too, but it eventually leaves five."

"And four from five?"

"One!" exclaimed her elder from the proud pinnacle of perfect knowledge, thinking also what a nice teacher she was.

Martina rose with a sigh of relief from the region of her pinafore and said kindly, but with some condescension, "Well, now, you have learned that much anyway."—Lippincott's Magazine.

When Woman Wins.

Twice in the year 2011, and the impudent general was rallying her wavering female troops.

"Woman," she cried, "will you give way to manly fears?"

A timid murmur ran through the ranks.

"Shall it be said we are clothed in mail armor?" shrieked the leader.

The murmur grew more confused.

"Will you," came the taunting cry from their gallant general, "show the white feather at this time of the year, when feathers are out of fashion?"

The effect was wonderful, astounding, inviolable!

"Never," roared her noble followers, "never!"

And, forming themselves rapidly into battle array, they once more hurled themselves relentlessly upon the enemy.—New York Call.

As Instructed.

A well known American author tells of an amusing incident that occurred during a reception given in his honor by a London society woman. The honoree accorded this writer, who is a great favorite in England, did not suspect him, nor was he disgraced by an embarrassing situation that confronted him just before the reception closed.

It was then that the hostess brought up to him his daughter, a pretty child of seven years. Just as soon as she had been presented the youngster said in a loud, clear voice:

"I think you're a very wonderful man!"

"Why do you say that, my dear?" asked the author, smiling.

"Because," said the little girl, "mother told me so."—Harper's Magazine.

A Question of Depth.

"Beauty," said the ready made philosopher, "is oily skin deep."

"I can't agree with you," said the positive man. "If beauty were measured by that standard the rhinoceros would be one of the most charming animals."—Exchange.

The Rest Matrimonial.

She—You can never accuse me of helping you to make a fool of yourself. He—I don't know about that. You said yes when I asked you to marry me.—Baltimore American.

Sunday in Portsmouth, following stiff cold Saturday night was a sparkling cold seventh day, the thermometer in the early morning being six degrees below zero. It remained clear and sunny all day, as well as cold. Towards nightfall the wind abated.

Sunday night there were three drunks on the police blotter. Two of them were women, who drifted into this city. Saturday night a man was arrested while attempting to break open one of the steel saving boxes issued by some of the banks. He is suspected of stealing it.

Members of Portsmouth branch, W. C. T. U., are packing the comfort bags to be sent to the woodsmen who inhabit Conway and the adjoining towns of New Hampshire. The bags will contain bandages, medicated cotton, needles and thread, writing paper and other small necessities calculated to assist the woodsmen in providing comfort for themselves.

FOR SALE—New power boat, 23x6, will seat 12, smooth seam, white oak timbers, will finish deck seats, etc. as buyer desires. A very distinctive type where comfort and sea worthiness is required. Call or write to Hazen C. Randall, Boat Builder, New Castle, N. H.—J29hclw.

IT CERTAINLY WAS ALIVE

A live wire with heavy voltage dropped on the ground near the corner of Daniel street and Market square Saturday night, and for a while there were fireworks galore. A hurried message to the power plant soon brought a lineman to the spot who quickly repaired the break.

The St. Louis is at Yerba Buena.

The auxiliary Celtic will leave Guantanamo February 5, towing the ships and has been cut several times for repairs. The Celtic will then go of office.

POLICE HOLD DUNN FOR PINCHING BANK

John Dunn, a marine, was arrested by Officers Kelley and Philbrick on Water street Saturday night while trying to break open a small savings bank. The police brought Dunn and the money receptacle to the station where he was questioned as to how he came into possession of the bank, which contained a little over a dollar. Dunn told the police that he had no part in lifting the thing and that another party gave it to him and he could prove to the police that his story was true.

The police set in touch with the Piscataqua Savings bank official today who said the number on the bank showed it to be held by Flor Baldini, child residing on Russell street. The case will come up for hearing this afternoon in the municipal court.

COLBURN--JOY

A very pretty wedding took place Tuesday evening, Jan. 16, at the home of Mrs. George W. Sharman, 22 Madison St., West Medford, Mass. The bride was Miss Hattie L. Joy of Kittery, Me., and the groom was Louis R. Colburn, formerly of St Paul, Minn.

The ceremony was performed at 3:30 p. m. by Rev. Frank I. Paradise of Grace Episcopal church, Medford.

The house was beautifully decorated in a color scheme of green and white, with potted palms and plants, cut flowers and a large wedding bell, under which the bride and groom were married.

The best man was Mr. George W. Sharman and the maid of honor was Miss Florence Sharman. The bride was becomingly attired in white silk chiffon, trimmed with orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of bridal roses and an old duchess lace handkerchief, an heirloom of the family. Miss Sharman's gown was of yellow crepe-melange and she carried white carnations.

After the ceremony an English wedding supper was served in the dining room under white garlands and a large white bell. Two large wedding cakes decorated the table.

On Wednesday evening a reception was held from 8:30 to 11. Mr. and Mrs. Colburn were assisted in receiving by Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Sharman, Mr. and Mrs. Fred R. Hill of Dorchester, Mrs. Hill being a sister of the bride.

Musie was furnished by the Perry orchestra.

Mr. and Mrs. Colburn returned to Kittery Friday, where they will reside.
